OLIVE HILL.

Charlie Doran has been visiting his sister, Miss Fannie, and friends here for the past few days.

The young people enjoyed a nice social at Mr. and Mrs. J. P. DeFord's Friday night; also one at Mr. and Mrs. F. P. White's Saturday night.

Sunday night Jan. 31st about 12 o'clock the magnificent two story building used for school, church and other purposes, was consigned to the flames. It had been built not a year, and ever since July 20th, 1891, the sweet-toned bell, now broken, has called her neighbors' children to school, church and other gatherings that is destined to increase knowledge and wisdom, and refinement, with its iron tongue. After due consideration the citizens have decided to rebuild; and at the meeting for this purpose they offered the following resolutions:

Resolved 1st. That we, the citizens of Olive Hill and vicinity tender our sincere thanks to Prof. White for his earnest efforts in upbuilding and sustaining a good literary school and for his good work as a teacher in our midst.

2nd. That we regret very much to see him leave us; but he can be assured that he carries with him our love and best wishes that he may have such success as he did while with us.

3rd. That his return, when we shall have completed another house will be greatly appreciated.

To which Prof. White said, "Gentlemen and dear friends—I return many thanks for your liberal patronage and for the kindness and courtesy you have shown me; and I commend you on your uprightness, generosity and integrity; and do hope that in the near future I will return to my dear pupils that I may carry out the work and plans that have before been devised."
